

Wisconsin's No Call List should not be weakened. This law has greatly lessened the unsolicited calls received at home, whether for sales, or charity contributions. Just because my household may have had contact with a business does not give them the right to harass me at home. If I want contact with a company or charity, I will contact them. Leave the current law alone, or better yet, strengthen it. Continue to protect consumers, not telemarketers.